When patients ask how they can thank me, I think of my alma mater.

The ginkgo’s fan-shaped leaves are a symbol of longevity, hope, resilience and peace.
Dear Patient,

My alma mater, Tufts University School of Medicine, helped me become the physician I am today. Tufts is a premiere institution. It trains thousands of physicians to deliver compassionate, highly skilled care—the kind I try to provide.

If you feel inclined to thank me, I would greatly appreciate your making a gift to Tufts University School of Medicine.

It will do more than honor me. It also will provide scholarship support to new doctors—physicians-in-the-making who receive the same high-caliber medical education I received and who will continue to deliver top medical care to generations to come.

My deepest thanks,
